BERLIN CHILI FESTIVAL RETURNS WITH GERMANY'S SECOND EVER CHILI EATING COMPETITION:

Berlin Chili Festival is coming back to its roots at Berliner Berg Brewery in September for the Chili Harvest festival.

This time, the festival is proud to introduce Germany's second Professional Chili Eating Competition in collaboration with "League of Fire," the globally recognized authority on chili eating competitions. This event will mark the second year of the German championship of this esteemed competition, where the finest chili eaters will gather to compete for the German professional title belt. Last year's Amateur winner "Gee Demiray" will be competing in the professional event this year.

Additionally, the festival will host the thrilling finals of the Berlin Amateur Chili Eating Competition. Over 50 contenders will engage in a fierce battle until the end, with only one contestant being crowned the local Berlin chili-eating legend. This will also qualify the winner to enter the professional event in 2025.

To enter the Berlin Amateur Chili Eating Competition, just turn up at the event on the Sunday before 1pm and sign up at the stage. The first event will be at 2pm, contenders will need to sign a disclaimer.

In addition to the captivating competitions, the festival will feature over 50 hot sauce vendors from across Europe, delectable food stalls, live music, entertainment, and a few surprises. This family-friendly event will also include a dedicated kids' play area within the venue.

Entertainment at the event will also include a spicy cabaret show, live music & comedy. You can find the full-line up and schedule on the website.

To help us cover the costs of the organisation, team and venue, a 5€ donation will be asked for at the door. Opening at midday and running until 10 pm on both Saturday and Sunday, attendees can enjoy the festivities throughout the day.

Well-behaved dogs are also warmly welcome.
